RESEARCH@SOUTHERN

Research portal highlights faculty and student research at Southern Adventist University

Contributed by Pamela Jansen

In November, McKee Library launched its new research portal, Research@Southern, which is a Tumblr blog highlighting the research and academic accomplishments of Southern students, alumni, and faculty.

The portal has featured stories about Joyce Azevedo's ancient DNA project, the release of Michael Cafferky's book, Business

Ethics in Biblical Perspective, and the anticipated release of books by Ben McArthur and Jud Lake. Other stories have featured research activities of recent graduates.

The library team updates the blog weekly, releasing new stories every Wednesday. Future posts will feature a sampling of the student projects presented at Campus Research Day.

Research@Southern is a great way to stay "in the know" regarding the academic endeavors of the Southern community.

In addition to promoting research and scholarly curiosity, inclusion in the research portal is a great reward for excellent work. Students whose research will be covered in the portal have expressed their appreciation and excitement at having their efforts acknowledged outside the classroom.

Stay up to date with the latest research happenings at Southern by subscribing to the blog. If you have recommendations for future posts, we would love to hear from you. Just contact Pamela Jansen at pjansen@southern.edu.
